•Rosemary Gladstar
“Kathi Keville’s beautifully illustrated aromatic garden and infectious love of plants and distillation are redolent in these pages, while her enviable depth of knowledge about all things, such as how plants communicate, makes her book an intellectual delight to savor. Every page is a journey into the nature of nature.

•Robert Tisserand, author and essential oil researcher

“Beautifully done and immensely helpful.”

•Jim Duke, author of The Green Pharmacy

“Keville weaves references to studies about healing and invigorating smells into short cultural histories of facts and stats. . . . Most admirably, Keville rises to the challenge of describing each scent (Basil’s spicy clove scent, with its hint of mind and pepper, makes it delightfully sweet, hot, and sharp all at the same time).

With such rich descriptions, readers will long for the actual aroma.

•Publishers Weekly

“Kathi Keville fills the reader’s medicine chest with information on how to grow your well-being with plants.”

•Garden Design Online

This book is sooo pretty. I borrowed a copy from the local library and before it was due back, I ordered my own copy. Even if I am not able to grow my own fragrant garden, just reading about them is uplifting to me.

This is a really well done book. It is full of instruction, inspiration and passion. It is also fun to read and at some point while reading you will most likely feel an overwhelming urge to head to a nursery!
