Unique Eats & Eateries Chicago

Synopsis

Chicago has come a long way since its stereotypical days as a meat-and-potatoes town. Over the past several decades, as the city rose to global metropolis status, so too did its multifaceted food scene. Nowadays, Chicago's restaurants, bakeries and neighborhood eateries are as highly regarded as its famed skyscrapers. Sure there are hot dogs and deep-dish pizzas aplenty, much of it well worth a bucket list-type visit, but there's so much more to explore and eat in all corners of the city. Try Macanese food in Logan Square. Pair "culinary beer" with German chocolate cake. Go old-school in a legendary Gold Coast steakhouse. From awe-inspiring tasting menus hidden away down a quiet West Loop street to smoked fish with a side of Blues Brothers lore, Chicago is filled to the brim with unique eats and eateries. Come hungry.

Chicago!

Matt Kirouac is a Chicago-based food, beverage and travel writer and editor. After graduating culinary school, he took his education in a different direction and expanded upon it, writing for companies like Daily Candy, Kimpton Hotels, Time Out, Food Fanatics magazine, Brand USA and numerous others. Currently, he works for Zagat, Plate and other freelance positions.

So today I got my hands on a copy of Unique Eats and Eateries. As I was reading some of the entries in the book I was reminded why I love my husband so much. Matt Kirouac brought me to tears for the simple reason that this book isn't about reviews or restaurants or what the cool places are (even though they are pretty cool places). It's about the restaurants and the restauranteurs that put their heart, soul, and family's into their businesses, it's about the connections formed to create inspiration for restaurants, it's about the passion of Chicago's food scene, it's about the people of Chicago that have embarked on journeys to bring culture to your table. Matt Kirouac captured Chicago like he captured my heart. ♡•••♡•••
